Notes:

1. A seasonal start to the month was followed by a cold plunge near the equinox and then unseasonable warmth near month's end. Record lows were tied on the 19th and 21st, with an early frost recorded away from Lake Ontario. Otherwise it was a pleasant month. Temperatures averaged 62.2°, 0.4° above normal. Precipitation was scant until near month's end, with ¾ of the total rainfall occurring on the last two days of the month. Precipitation at 2.29" was 1.09" below normal. Birding saw a transition from the end of the breeding season to strong migration late in the month.

2. Once again, essentially all expected waterfowl were reported, but peak counts were again low for all. As usual, a number of species arrived at relatively early dates, including: Snow Goose, Brant, and the scoters. Counts of only Mallard and Red-breasted Mergansers topped 100. Low water in the NMWMA limited waterbird counts there.

3. Common Nighthawk numbers were low, with the maximum only 12. The peak count of 100 Chimney Swifts was from the south end of Irondequoit Bay on the 21st. Again, hummingbirds are still around into October.

4. Water levels were still slightly above average on Lake Ontario and little rainfall in August and September left us again with little good shorebird habitat in the region. Still, 25 species were reported. Upland Sandpiper, Whimbrel, Red Knot, and Buff-breasted Sandpiper were the most interesting, with Stilt Sandpiper the one regular missing. Again, there were no especially noteworthy counts. Sites along the Lake Ontario shore, especially the barrier beach island at the mouth of Braddock Bay, were the most productive.

5. Jaeger numbers this month were very good, with about 63 Parasitic, with a maximum of nine on the 17th; a Long-tailed on the 4th and two Long-tailed/Parasitic on the 5th; and about 10 additional jaegers not identified to species. Rarer gull species included two immature Sabine's Gulls passing Hamlin Beach on the 14th, a Laughing Gull, and about 13 Lesser Black-backed Gulls. Beyond these, all the usual terns were reported, but numbers of both gulls and terns were fairly low.

6. Only a single Red-throated Loon was reported and Common Loon peaked at just 34. The best counts for Double-crested Cormorant were at feeding frenzies off the Hamlin Beach Lakewatch. Two American White Pelicans were spotted at the barrier beach at Braddock Bay on the 14th by Mitchell Barry, who phoned Andy Guthrie, who spotted them later in Hamlin still headed west. A very rare immature Yellow-crowned Night-Heron was found at the barrier beach on the 25th and seen by many that day and briefly along Buttonwood Creek on the 29th.

7. Among the raptors, there were no really noteworthy reports, species or numbers. There were no Black Vulture reports. No Northern Goshawks were reported. Only E. Screech-Owl and Great Horned Owl were reported in that family. Good numbers of all three regular falcons were recorded.

8. Once again, all of the expected passerines were reported. Among the rarer species reported were: the usual Fish Crows; two Worm-eating Warblers banded; a Prothonotary Warbler banded; six Orange-crowned Warblers, none banded; six Connecticut Warblers, with four of these banded at BBBO; Yellow-throated Warbler at the Church and Firehouse area on the 5th, 6th, and 12th, and possibly the same bird nearby at Kevin Griffith's home in Greece on the 15th; and two Prairie Warblers. The Noteworthy Records table to be posted on the RBA website will contain samples of numbers banded, arrivals, and departures. Migration was fairly strong this month and continued into October. Both reports by birders and banding numbers were up some for many species. Species with high banding numbers, some of the highest in ( ) after the species name are: Philadelphia Vireo (38), Red-eyed Vireo (108), Gray-cheeked Thrush (78), Swainson's Thrush (327), Gray Catbird, White-throated Sparrow (416), Ovenbird, Nashville Warbler, Common Yellowthroat, American Redstart, Magnolia Warbler (206), Bay-breasted Warbler (70), and Blackpoll Warbler (316).

9. The 220 species for the month is one of the highest numbers reported for this month. The eBird data download for the region for the month was about 34,413, a xx% increase/decrease over last September. The bird of the month was the Yellow-crowned Night-Heron, though the number of jaegers comes in a close second.

10. Please submit reports to eBird, post them on geneseebirds, and/or send by the 5th of the month to Andrea Patterson, 144 Greystone Lane, #24, Rochester, NY 14618.
